ORITANI LADIES MAY NOW SELL CHANCES WITHOUT FEAR.

Beacon Harris, who Is One of the Govern-ors of the Field Club, Is Credited with Bringing About a Happy Compromise, HACKENSACE, Nov. 13.-The raffle has won, and Oritani Field Club women are free to sell and other valuable articles without the fear of prosecution for felony that has hung over them or several days. The decision was reached late The Rev. Herman Vanderwart, the pastor of the First Reformed Church, is by many reputed to be at the head of the movement to stop raf-fling at the Oritani Field Club fair, and Charles

Harris is a deauen in the same church. Mr. Harris is a stock broker, and one of the Governors of the field club. He is a man of wealth. philanthropic, and among the most esteemed citizens of Hackensack. He did not consider it fair to spring the anti-raffie law on the field club on the very eve of the fair, although perconally well known to be opposed togames of chance, and he refused to sign one of the petitions printed in THE SUN yesterday, asking the Board of Governors of the club to prohibit the raffles. The Rev. Mr. Vanderwart took exception to this attitude of his descon, and at the close of the afternoon evangelistic service in the Presbyterian Church the two "had it out," the preacher being the aggressor. Deacon Harris maintained his position with vigor and repulsed

This and many other controversies added unusual zest to life in Hackensack during tho day.

Thus the leading topic in the town was the 'outrage on Oritani," with the sermon of the Rev. J. C. Voorhis on Sunday evening against Evangelist Munhall in second place, and the revival a close third. Last night the first Reformed Church was again packed to hear Dr. Munhall fleck the reporters gently with his sharp wit and score the Rev. Mr. Voorhis (without naming him for what was deemed his unwarranted and ill-timed denunciation of the Munhall mysement.

Munhall movement.
While this meeting was in progress Deacon
Harris, as a representative of the anti-raffle petitioners, left the church with a batch of petitions and the following letter addressed to the Hoard of Governors of the field club:

GENTLEMEN: The papers this morning contained items saying in effect that it is the intention to have parties arrested who may engage in the selling of chances at the contain fair of your club.

We assure you that such is not our intention, but the object of the protest is to show to you the feeling in town against the selling of chances and ionteries at fairs, and to obtain for the future a cessation from such acts.

The Governors suspended the work of decorating the armory and gave Deacon Harris immediate hearing. They protested that their meeting was not changed from Menday to last Saturday evening to avoid receiving the petitions, but for purely legitimate reasons. Then the subject of raffling was discussed for more than an hour. Deacon Harris diplomatically paved the way for the retreat of the antis, and had not a little to do, as governor, with formulating a reply that would be satisfactory to the petitioners. When the conference closed the Deacon was at peace with himself, and he rejoiced, as a governor, that he could bear back to the petitioners this assurance that the men and women of the field club did not purpose breaking the law with unnecessary harshness:

AT HIS MOTHER'S FUNERAL. Arrest of Bookkeeper Abresdle After Two

Gustave Grafmuller, junior partner in the firm of Max Ams & Co., manufacturers of conserves, at 372 Greenwich street, appeared at the Sixtyseventh street station house about 1 P. M. yes-terday and showed Capt. Strauss a warrant which had been drawn up in September, 1892, by Judge Lippincott of the Court of Sessions. Jersey City, calling for the apprehension of Jacob C. Abresdie, bookkeeper for the firm. Mr. Grafmuller explained that the bookkeeper had been wanted for forgery for the past two years, during which he had succeeded in eluding the police.

On Monday, Mr. Grafmuller said, be learned that Abresdie's mother had died. He thought that Abresdie would be present at the funeral, which was to take place at I o'clock from her late residence, at 147 East Seventy-second street. The body was to be taken to Fresh Pond, L. I., for cremation. Mr. Grafmuller said he would accompany a policeman, and point out the functive if he was present at the funeral. Capt. Strauss detailed Policeman King to go to the bone-fwith Grafmuller. They waited on the sidewalk until the mourners came out to take carriages. Almost the first to appear was Abresdie, with his wife leaning upon his arm. The woman entered a carriage and Abresdie was about to follow, when Grafmuller gave the signal and King tapped him on the shoulder. The man turned pale, and looked up and down the street as if contemplating flight. But King divined his intention and grabbed him by the arm. Abresdie then broke down and wept like a child. His wife was also completely broken down.

a child. His wife was also completely broken down.

King took his prisoner to the Yorkville Court, where he was arraigned before Police Justice McMahon. After being informed of his rights. Abresdie said he committed the forgery in this city, thus putting the case outside the jurisdiction of the Jersey courts.

Justice McMahon committed the prisoner for forty-eight hours to enable the police to look into the case and get the particulars of the crime. Grafmiller said that Abresdie had forged the endorsement of the payee to a small check sent by the firm of Max Ams & Co. to a customer in Williamsburgh, and cashed it in Jersey City. The case will be heard to-morrow.

HER WEDDING PRESENTS HERS. Tiffany & Co. Sent Them to Her Husband and Must Pay Her for Them.

Myrtilla F. Hart obtained a verdict of $1,030. fore Justice Barrett of the Supreme Court yes-terday against Tiffany & Co., because the firm had given a trunk containing her wedding presents, which she had committed to them on storage, to her husband, Joshua H. Hart of Charleston, from whom she had separated. The point was raised, without avail, that by the law of South Carolina wedding presents belong to the husband. They don't in New York.

Mrs. Hart sat in court with Julian Nathan, a brother of the late Washington Nathan. She married Hart in this city on March 27, 1884. Her maiden name was Jackson, and her father was a member of the New York Stock Exchange.
Mrs. Hart left her husband on April 4, 1892, and went to reside with her uncle at Charleston.
She was about to take a steamer with her child for this city two weeks later, but she was stopped on the steamer by a writ of habeas corpus for the production of the child in court. An arrangement was made by which she has kept the child.

She was living at 14 East 125th street on July 1, 1891, when she sent the trunk to Tiffany & Co. without the knowledge of her husband. He learned of it and sent a letter from Charleston to Tiffany & Co., asking them to send the trunk to him, saying that he had concluded to reside permanently in Charleston. On Feb. 9, 1892, they sent him the trunk. The firm did not know of the invancing extrappenent.

permanently in Charleston. On Feb. 9, 1892, they sent him the trunk. The firm did not know of the impending estrangement.

Mrs. Hart testified that she had letters in the trunk which she intended to use in an action for divorce against her husband. He had obtained other papers from her, she said, and, fearing that he might try to get these letters, she wrote to the firm telling them not to give up the trunk to her husband. The firm deny receiving such a letter. She alleged that the contents of the trunk were worth $2,500, exclusive of the letters, consisting of silver, part of her trousseau, and point lace of much value. It appeared that no action for divorce has been brought. Hart admitted that he had received the trunk, and declared that it had previously been in his possession and that his wife had no right to put it in storage. It contained property of his own. When the trunk reached Charleston he had a jeweller and a dry goods man value the articles and they valued them at $427.75. His wife has never asked him to give her back the contents of the trunk.

Justice Barrett said that if a person can give to a husband what is confided to him by the wife, he can give it to any other relative or to a stranger.

WHAT ORNITHOLOGISTS SAY.

Some interesting papers were read by members of the American Ornithologists' Union, which met yesterday in the library of the American Bates excited interest by her account of "A is known swallows' migratory flights are warblers and other migrants are constantly found dead around lighthouses, having dashed themselves against the windows of the lanterns, swallows have never been known to meet their fate in this way, furnishes strong presumptive evidence of this peculiarity of the swallow tribe.

Another interesting paper was that read by Dr. Elliot Coues on the "Avifauna of the Source of the Mississippi River." Dr. Coues has recently made a trip to the source of the river. From Lake Itasca he paddled up the stream in a birch-bark canoe. Occasionally, the water became so shallow, or so choked with reeds, that he had to land and carry the canoe along the banks for a mile or so before resimbarking. Finally, however, he arrived at the source. This source is somewhat peculiar, for on part of a little hill the stream apparently comes to an end, leading the explorer to suppose that he had arrived at the spring. As a matter of fact, the stream starts about half a mile higher up, soaking through the hill and reappearing below on its course.

The commonest bird in these regions/seems to themselves against the windows of the lanterns be the "solitary sandpiper," which frequents them in enormous numbers, thus signally failing to justify the adjective generally prefixed to its name.

Dr. O. Widmann gave a curious account of a "Robin's Winter Roost." Enormous numbers of robins congregate nightly in a marsh near St. Louis. Every winter's night the trees are laden with the birds at roost. As daybreak they rise together in a dense cloud, and in a few minutes the place is deserted. The birds fly to their various feeding places fifty or one hundred miles away, and return every evening to the common shelter, as long as the cold weather lasts.

Again Passed Upon.

Judge Truax handed down yesterday a derision in the case of Mrs. Charlotte A, von Cort, denying the motion to vacate the Com-mission to inquire into her lunacy and ordering that the matter be sent to the Circuit Court. that the matter be sent to the Circuit Court, where the question as to her mental condition will be tried before a jury.

Some time ago Mrs. Von Cort, who is nearly eighty years of age, decided her property to her nephew on condition that he support her during her lifetime. Mrs. Florence J. Atkina, who says she is the old woman's daughter, but who is repudiated by Mrs. Von Cort, had the question of the defendant's sanity raised. A Sheriff's jury disagreed on the first inquisition, and the matter was sent to a Commission de lunatico inquirendo.

John Hiurich, Jr., formerly Secretary of the Star Building and Loan Association of 258 Broadway, was convicted yesterday in the Gen-Broadway, was convicted yesterday in the fren-eral Sessions of appropriating to his own use $36,17, which was paid to him by Thomas Cas-sidy, a clerk in the General Post Office, who was a depositor in the association. The total amount of Hinrich's stealings is said to have been $7,000. Hinrich's young wife and four children were in the court room, and they birst into tears when he was convicted. Judge Cowing remanded Hinrich to await sentence.

Judge Freedman of the Superior Court has fined the following jurors $50 each for failing to appear in his court to serve when their names were called: Jereminh M. Tier, 111 Christopher street: Peter W. Aines, 9 East Twenty-slath street: John Ballard, 308 Eighth avenue; teeorge H. FLOWER'S COMMISSION IN-VESTIGATES A FATAL FIRE.

It Has Been Mahing Personal Inquiries
About Tenoment Life and in Tahing
a Census of Children of School Age. The Tenement House Commission appointed by Gov. Flower held its first public hearing yesterday afternoon in one of the old General Sessions Court rooms. The Commission consists of Richard Watson Gilder, Chairman; Roger Foster, Solomon Moses, Dr. Cyrus Edson, John P. Schuchman, William d'H. Washington, and George B. Post. For five months the Commissioners have been making personal investigaonly tenement house construction but also the social and economic conditions of tenement house life, with special reference to the children and their moral and physical environment. A census of the children of school age is now being taken under the direction of the Commission by Prof. Giddings of Columbia College and his class in sociology, comprising about twenty-five students. The canvass is being made in two quarters on the east side, one peopled chiefly by Italians and the other by Rus-sian Jews. The census will be made the basis of recommendations for legislation relating to compulsory education. One of the problems which claimed the attention of the Commissioners was that of providing better means of safety against fatal fires in tenement houses. On Oct. 20 seven persons were suffocate1 at 216 West Thirty-second street, and it was about that fire that the Commission began taking testimony yesterday, Chairman Gilder asked the questions, with fre quent hints from his associates. David W. King, the committee's architectural expert, produced plans which he had made of David W. King, the committee's architectural expert, produced plans which he had made of the Thirty-second stree' building. It was of ordinary old-fashioned tenement construction.

E. F. Croker, chief of a battalion in the Fire Department, testified that he arrived at the fire three minutes after the alarm, which was turned in at 3:12 A. M. He found a fierce fire in the cellar, extending upward.

"Why were no ladders used in the rear?" he was asked.

"Because there was no necessity for them."

"But the seven people were suffocated in the rear of the house."

"Yes; but nobody knew they were there. There were no crice from the windows."

When the firemen went into the back yard it was by means of the hallway. All the tenants who were killed died from suffocation, and those who escaped reached the ground by the fire escape. It was impossible to get up the stairway, on account of the fire. John Biehn, the owner of the tenement, testified that he saw no encumbrances on the fire escape.

Nathan A. Freudmann, one of the tenants, described his escape by the rear fire escape. He had cried from the window, he said, but there were no firemen in the yard. "When I got down," he said, "there were no firemen in the yard of in the hallway, although the fire had been going twenty-five or thirty minutes. There were no encumbrances on the fire escape."

Chief Croker took the stand again to say that he got to the house within three minutes after the alarm and that there was an engine there ahead of him. A search of the house was made in three or four minutes more.

"Do you believe that the people were dead when you got there?" asked Mr. Gilder.

"Without a doubt."

If the alarm had been sent out in time, he said, the people would not have perished. The fire must have been in progress a long time before the sending of the alarm.

Battalion Chief John J. Bresnan said that the loss of life might have been prevented by a disconnection of the basement from the upper floors with a fireproof flooring between. Such an arrangement prevents impossible to prevent it, attnoord are made."

The stairways ought to be non-combustible, Mr. Bresnan thought.

"Is delay in reaching a fire of frequent occurred in the stairway in the stair currence."

"It is practically impossible. The great trouble is delay in sending alarms, in spite of all we can do to instruct the people."

The Commission will sit on Friday and Saturday, and the hearings will go on for six weeks.

M'KANE TURNS OVER HIS BOOKS Gravesend's Muddled Accounts May Be

Since the annexation of the town of Gravesend o Brooklyn, Mayor Schieren and Comptroller Corwin have been anxious to have the badly muddled accounts of the town straightene out. Franklin Alien, who was ex-Mayor Seth Low's private secretary, was employed by the Board of Supervisors as an expert accountant. His chief obstacle was his inability to secure access to the papers, checks, and check books of John Y. McKane, the fallen Gravessend dictator. At the request of the Mayor and Comptroller, W. A. Brown, the accountant of the Board of Audit, went to Sing Ning on Monday and had an interview with McKane, who promised to have all the missing papers, checks, books, and other documents placed in Mr. Brown's hands. McKane said that he was innocent of any wrongdoing, and wanted to have all his papers examined. All he asked was that Mr. Brown should make a fair and complete examination and report the results as he found them.

Mr. Brown says that he found the imprisoned ex-chief of Gravessead in excellent health and just as full of nerve as in the old days. The old safe which was used by McKane and other Gravesend officials for several was years years day removed from the old town hall and taken to the Assessors' office in the Brooklyn municipal building. His chief obstacle was his inability to secur Carney died on Monday morning in Owen Fitzgerald's rooms in the basement at 616 East Thirteenth street. It was supposed he had been stabbed over the eye, but at the autopsy made vesterday by Deputy Coroners Weston and Donlan it was found that the wound over the left eye was only a slight cut through the skin. Dr. Weston declared before Justice Grady that Carney died of alcoholism, which had produced odema and congestion of the brain. The several witnesses whose names were given in yesterday's Evx testified, but could not connect McLaughlin in any way with Carney's death.

Assistant District Attorney Bradley told the Justice that something further might develop in the case, and wanted McLaughlin held to await the action of the Coroner's jury, but Justice Grady told him he would take all responsibility, and dismissed the case. On the recommendation of Superintendent of Parks Parson, the Board ordered that 200 additional gaslights be put in Central Park.

The building trades section of the Central Labor Union complained that the contractors at work on the Harlem River Driveway were violating the Eight-hour law. The complaint was sent to the contractors, with a request for an explanation.

Application was made to Judge Truax in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday, for the apcointment of a receiver for Coroner Shea, who was lately examined in supplementary proceedings on a debt of $2,500, alleged to be due a liquor firm for goods delivered to the "Curio" liquor firm for goods delivered to the "Curio" saloon, on Centre street, when Shea was part towner. A receiver for the property at Third avenue and 189th street, which Shea transferred to his wife in September, 1893, for $185, is also asked for. It is averred that the property was transferred while Shea was beavily in debt, and that the consideration was not sufficient. For Shea there is no opposition to the appointment of a receiver, but it is contended that since September, 1893, Mrs. Shea has satisfied a mortgage on the property of $8,000, and has also paid other liens on it to the extent of $2,000, the total encumbrances at the time she paid $185 for it being $14,000. GOV. FLOWER TO THE BANKERS. 'Take My Advice," He Says, "and Keep Out of Polities,"

Group No. 9, the local branch of the New York State Bankers' Association, entertained the officers of the association and the Chairmen of the nine different groups at a reception at the Windsor Hotel from 5 o'clock until 7 last evening. W. P. St. John was Chairman of the Reception Committee. The members of the State Association were in the city to attend a business meeting in the afternoon.

An elaborate collation was served, and there was singing by a delegation from the New York Banks' Glee Club, under the leadership of H. H. Humphries. The principal speaker of the evenng was Gov. Flower, who said, among other

"Take my advice and never meddle with politics. [Laughter.] While I have been Govrnor of this State, this great and glorious State, of which there is no count, let alone better, the banks were shown to be stronger and firmer than was ever expected. During the uneasy feeling and runs on the banks in the summer o 1893 this was illustrated. I'm very glad you got responsible for more than half of it, for you wouldn't loan anybedy money—not even a broker.

"I love the people of this State; they are a great people. I'm sorry to say some of them do not return the compliment. [Great laughter.] While I left my office three years ago, I did not ealist for the whole war, and I expect to return to the list of those who are in business, and to swear at the Governor as you do. [More laughter.]
"It will take several years to pass a new currency law, and the only way to do it is to keep at it. I believe that the time is coming when you will be happy; not exactly yet, but it is coming. There is a wave of good feeling and prosperity coming, and it will last for five or ten years or more."

The Council of Administration met in the afternoon and elected President W. C. Cornwell of the State Association, a Buffalo banker, its President, and Charles Adsit of Rochester Secretary. A committee was appointed to formulate a uniform statement for customers and another to get up a hurreau for the prevention of crime. The resolutions adopted by the American Bankers' Association, suggesting a method of securing national bank circulation without the deposit of Government boulds, were discussed. It was said that President Cleveland would incorporate these recommendations in his annual message.

It Apparently Didn't Fit - Dressmaker's Lawyer Arrested for Assault.

An unpaid dressmaker's bill caused a row in the lobby of the Eighth District Civil Court yesterday morning. Miss May Manette is a dress-maker at 231 West Twentieth street. She brought action to recover $20, the amount she claimed for making a black silk waist for Mrs. Matilda Mariet, a widow. Mrs. Mariet said that she refused to pay for the waist because it didn't fit. In proof of this she had several reputable dressmakers present who would bear out her

She offered to putt he waist on to show the Court how badly it fitted. Justice Stiner consented, and gave her the use of his private room for that purpose. Mrs. Mariet disappeared with a woman triend, and in a few minutes reappeared with the disputed waist on. When putting it on she evidently did at try to straighten out wrinkles.
She took the stand and tried to explain to Justice
Stiner that the waist was hally out and seamed in several places where it shouldn't be. Justice Stiner finally heard enough of the case, and he said he would reserve his decision.

All the persons interested then marched out of court. They had hardly closed the door when friend, and in a few minutes reappeared with All the persons interested then marched out of court. They had hardly closed the door when loud words were heard, and then a souffle. When, Justice Stiner learned the cause of the row ne had all the wranglers brought into court again. This time there were two battered men in the group. One was Richard T. Wallace, the dressmaker's lawyer, who has lately come from Chicago, and the other a witness for the defendant, who said Wallace had called him a liar and tried to throw him down stairs. They had, it seems, rolled down the stairs locked in each other's arms.

The Justice ordered an officer to take them to the Jefferson Market Police Court, where they were arraigned later in the day. Wallace was held for trial in $500 bail. Mrs. Mariet is said to be the assistant forewoman in the millinery department in Altman's, Sixth avenue and Nineteenth street.

TORONTO BOODLERS.

Evidence that Aldermen Were Eager to be Bribed.

TORONTO, Ontario, Nov. 13. - The County Judge who investigated the charges of boodling in connection with the civic electric lighting contract which implicated Alderman Stewart of the Toronto City Council and the Brush Electric Company of Cleveland made his report to day. He found that Stewart approached a local electric light company with a view of getting them to buy up Aldermen to vote agains: the purchase of an electric plant from the Brush Company, and to renew the contract with the Toronto company for lighting; that Stewart gave his own name and those of three other Aldermen who were open to be bribed, and he found Stewart to be wiffully guilty of corruptly soliciting bribes. The Brush Company having also reported that Aldermen had approached them for bribes, the Judge commented severely on their conduct for refusing to give evidence of corruption on the part of the Toronto Aldermen unless it was made conditional that they should get the contract. The Judge characterized this as almost as criminal as the alleged corrupt approaches made to the company, and he said if they persisted in refusing to give the desired evidence such a decision on their part would tend to show that the Brush Company is willing to entertain corrupt approaches. and to renew the contract with the Toronto com

A searching party, headed by the Rev. E. E. Nickerson, an evangelist, traced the young woman to a swamp. She was found by the Rev. Mr. Nickerson, daged and exhausted, sitting on a log. She was taken home. Miss Hubbard has been in a mild state of insanity for a year or so. Her condition is said to have been caused by a dose of carbolic acid she took by mistake when she was ill.

Judgment for $2,288 was obtained here yes-terday against Brackett W. Burleigh of Ticonderoga in favor of Frank F. Smith on a note made by Mr. Burleigh, dated Aug. 15, 1802, for $2,000, payable to Smith M. Weed, which note was endorsed by Mr. Weed, who delivered it to Mr. Smith.
